

RAIN STOPS URC RUN SATURDAY NIGHT AT GRANDVIEW SPEEDWAY

Hopes were high for a great night of URC sprint car racing as the Rislone Sprint Series invaded the Grandview Speedway for their first of three stops in 2008. A field of thirty URC sprints turned out on this hot and muggy Saturday night. A fantastic speedway surfaced was offered for the URC sprinters. Mares Stellfox won the first qualifying heat, then during the running of heat race two, the rain began to fall and the cars were sent back to the pits to wait out the rain delay.

Unfortunately, after a one-hour wait, management of Grandview Speedway did cancel the event. Actually, the call was the right one and shortly after the grandstands were empty, a heavy shower of rain joined by lightning and thunder soon rumbled over the track on the hill.

The URC Rislone Sprint Series will return to Grandview Speedway on Saturday night, July 26 with a 7:30 PM starting time.

For URC, their tour will continue with stops at the Penn Can Speedway on Friday, June 20 followed by a visit to the New Egypt Speedway on Saturday, June 21. The following week, Saturday, June 28, URC will return to the Delaware International Speedway.
